Not illustrated. 1891 Excerpt: .be published as an appendix to the proceedings of this convention. And he also suggested that all other commanders emulate his example. Seconded and adopted by a rising vote. Gen. Underwood then thanked the convention as follows: No officer deserves any thanks for doing his duty, but I thank you, nevertheless, most sincerely, that you have received my report with such evidences of appreciation. I would, however, ask you to strike out one part of the resolution--that which requires the publication of the rosters of the dead. It will cost you six hundred dollars to publish anything like the number I have (6000). They were published at my expense, and I will give away what I have here with me and gladly send copies to each individual who will write me at No. 64 Exchange Building, Chicago, or leave his name and address with Col. John...
